A Behavioral Health System for Youth

New Services Coming Soon

The Barry Robinson Center is excited to announce the expansion of Community Based Services with new programming called HomeBase, which will offer two different service opportunities:

Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA) has been established as the gold standard treatment for individuals (ages 2-17) with Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD) and other diagnoses. The focus of treatment is to decrease maladaptive and dangerous behaviors, and to assist children and adolescents in the acquisition and mastery of skills in areas such as: social interactions, functional communication, academics, safety skills, adaptive functioning, community integration, and motor skills.

- Individualized in-home therapy services range from 1-50 hours per week based on the clinical needs of the child.
- Services provided in-home are especially beneficial to children so that they can learn skills in their natural environment where they are most likely to experience events that trigger their maladaptive behaviors.
- Parent training is also utilized in order to strengthen the skills acquired during therapy and to provide structure and consistency when responding to the child.

Intensive In-Home (IIH) Counseling is ideal for children and adolescents (ages 5-17) who are experiencing serious behavioral and emotional difficulties that affect their ability to function safely in the home and community. Intensive therapeutic interventions are provided in the individual's residence to prevent the child becoming at risk for removal from his/her home.

- Individual therapy is designed to stabilize the individual, improve family dynamics, provide modeling, and include clinically necessary interventions that increase functional and therapeutic interpersonal relations between family members in the home.
- Comprehensive services include assessment of individual and family functioning, up to 12 hours per week of individual and family counseling sessions, crisis management intervention and intensive case management.
- The program utilizes a strength-based and person centered approach to build skills & resilience while decreasing maladaptive and dangerous behaviors, including: communication, parenting techniques, anger management and problem-solving.
